MEET the BUILDER

“At DILWORTH, we are committed to excellence in ALL we do.”

-Michael Dilworth

Michael Dilworth's concept is one of deep integrity, nurtured relationships, and a passion for building and skill. Evident not only in the impressive physical structures themselves but also among the testimonies of the many who have worked in partnership over the last 24 years.

Growing up around Mountain Brook, Alabama's stunning Southern architecture served as an inspiration, though Michael didn't realize then that building would one day become a career.

Michael followed his high school sweetheart and now wife of 16 years, Brooke, to attend Auburn University in 1998. While pursuing a degree in building science, Michael realized his calling for residential construction at age 19 after he built his first home to sell the summer before his sophomore year at Auburn University. His reputation as a talented and accomplished young builder grew from there, as he constructed and sold two custom homes before earning his building science degree.

After 20 years of building custom homes and developments, Michael added residential production homes and commercial properties to the DILWORTH portfolio. Following the sale of the neighborhood production division in 2021, there was a refocus and a pathway for Michael to return to his first love, Custom Home Building, and his commitment to the Customer Experience of Excellence.
